John Robson – Jurist

I believe we must celebrate the farmers and creators that have the truest of intentions and are passionate about ethically cultivating and sourcing what we eat for they are the backbone to a good life. It is important for us to see, from farm to table, the process in how we receive the food that we consume and more importantly those that provide it for us. These men and women put their hearts and souls into the work they do and the world needs to see behind the scenes into their daily struggles and joys.

Thank you to the Wickford Art Association for asking me to take part in the FoodWorks exhibition. I was excited to be named the juror for this show and honestly quite a bit jealous of those selected to do the work.

John Robson's photographs tell the story of the makers and shakers that put their heart and soul into their work, from culinary artists to ranchers and craftsmen. He admires a hard work ethic that creates calloused hands and the love that goes into creating a unique experience.

John's photographic eye is accompanied by a 20-year professional career in graphic design. Having grown up in the farmland of Central PA to the row-homed neighborhoods of Philadelphia, John's vision is enhanced by his rural and urban experiences. John currently resides by the foothills of the Rockies in Fort Collins, Colorado.

As a photographer, he has closely worked with Juli y Juan's Kitchen, Mountainside Events, Arcadian Pictures, Pumpkin Creek Ranch, MouCo Cheese, William Oliver's Public House, The Regional, The Windsor Chamber of Commerce and The City of Fort Collins. His photographs have shown in gallery's and have appeared in Edible Magazine, Fort Collins Lifestyle Magazine, FOCO Style Magazine, Scene Magazine, Salt Magazine, and Ride Magazine.
